VINCI Energies joins the European Cybersecurity month.

The distinguishing feature of humans compared to automated systems or robots is of course our brain, which enables us to assess situations and make decisions, often subconsciously and based on experience.

Rob Smit -

We are all just human

Humans unfortunately do not do this consistently in the same structured manner, and there are many reasons why we sometimes exhibit unpredictable behaviours. Over this European Cybersecurity Month, we will pay special attention to these matters at VINCI Energies by helping our employees develop their skills in identifying vulnerabilities and risks in our daily operations and to achieve more secure and responsible ways of handling information.
